

The contemporary glass alternative

IceFX is a range of decorative slumped acrylic sheet from Rossini. It is used for both interior and exterior applications, including domestic, retail, commercial, and marine. It can be incorporated into signage displays, partition screens, light diffusers, security screens and many other applications. The number of custom applications is only limited by the imagination. IceFX is lighter, safer and more versatile than glass, at an affordable price.

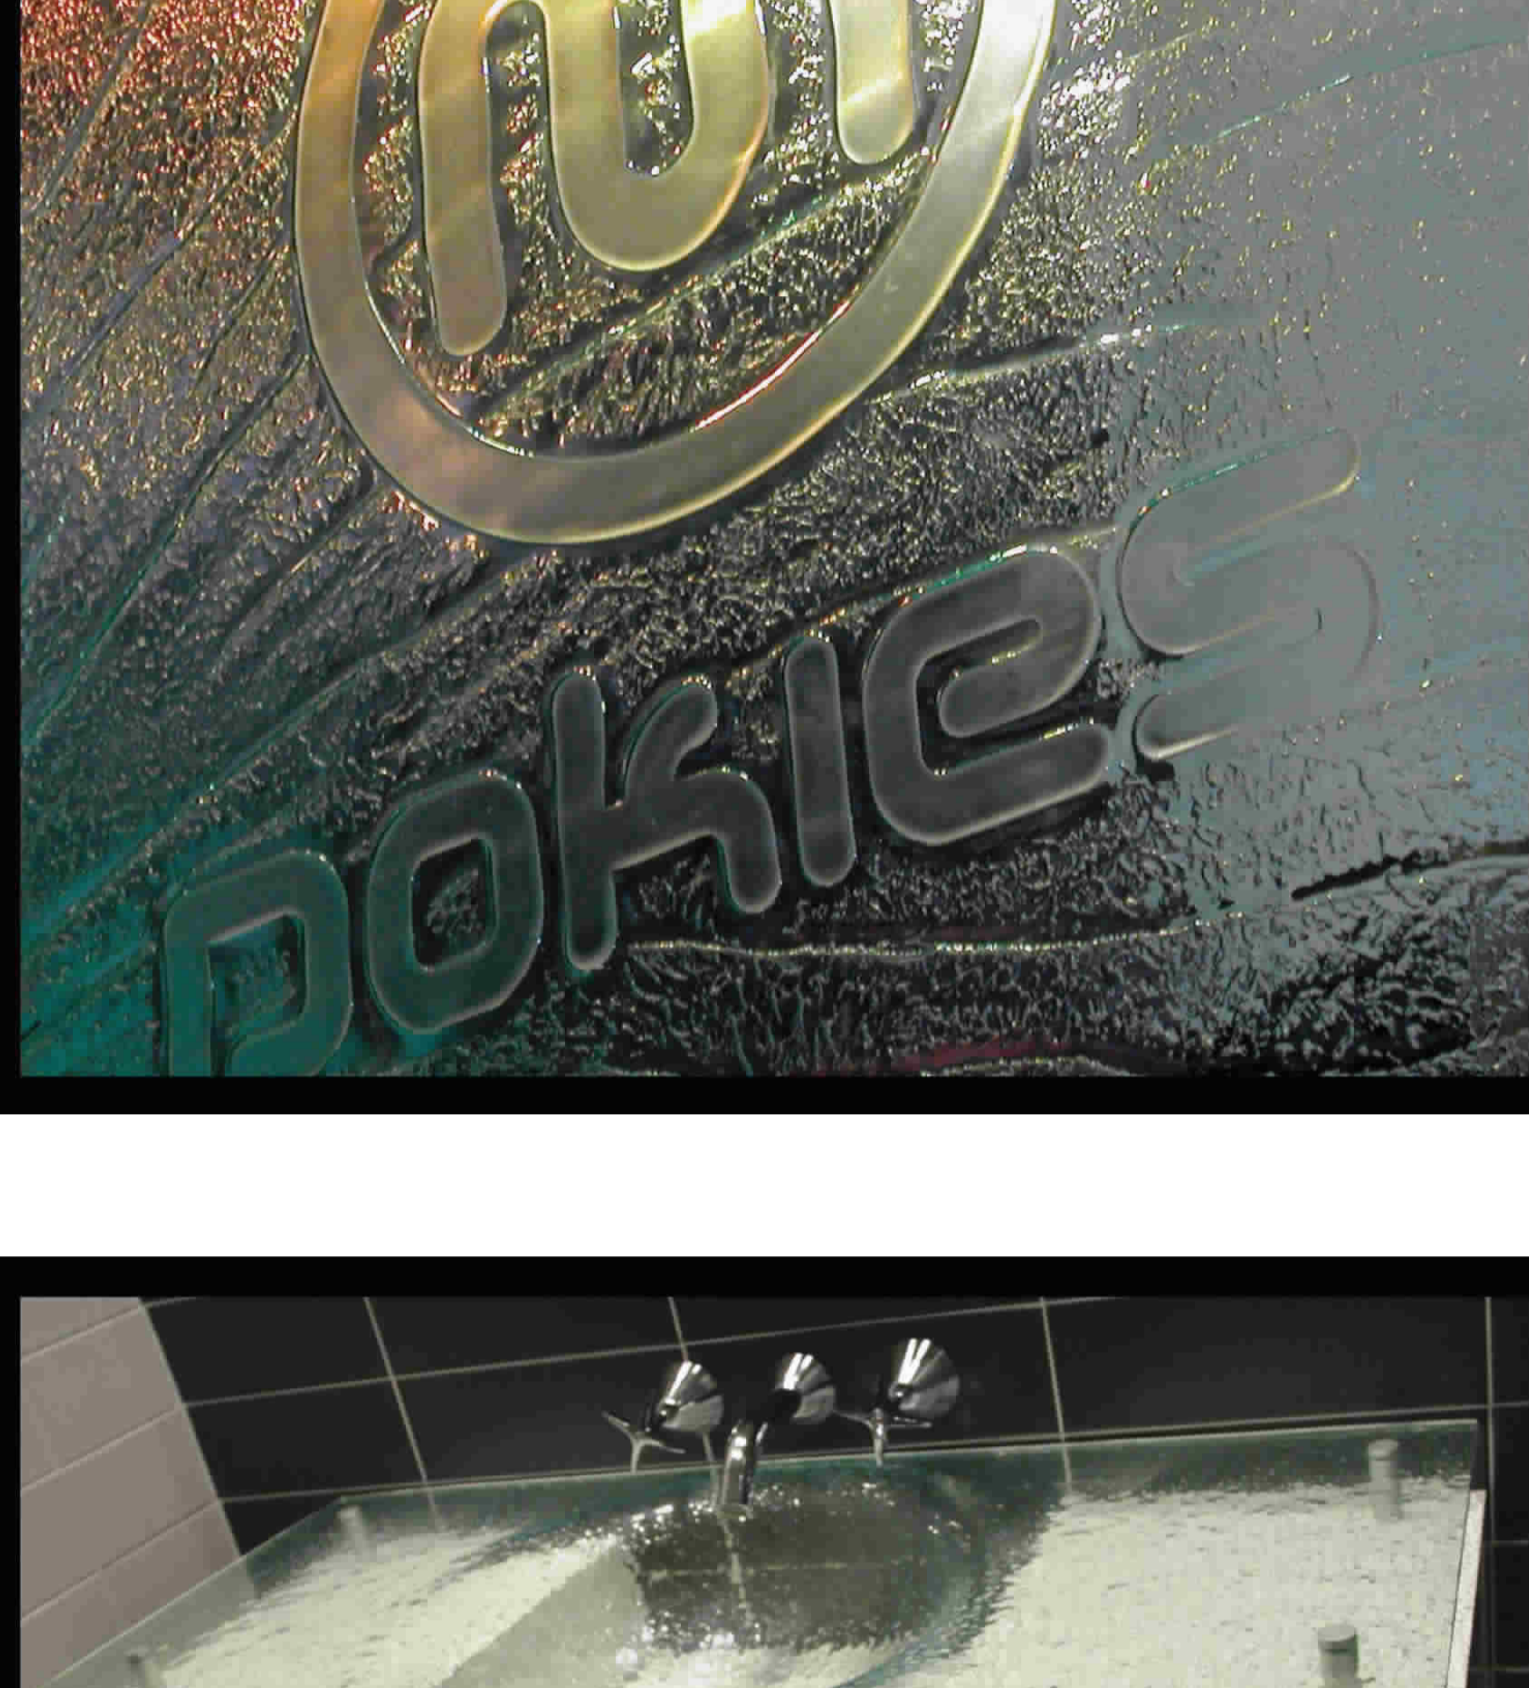

screening

IceFX is primarily used as a decorative screening product. It is ideal for this application as it naturally diffuses and distorts viewing.

signage

IceFX is extremely versatile as a signage product. It can be backlit, vinyl applied or back-applied with colour.

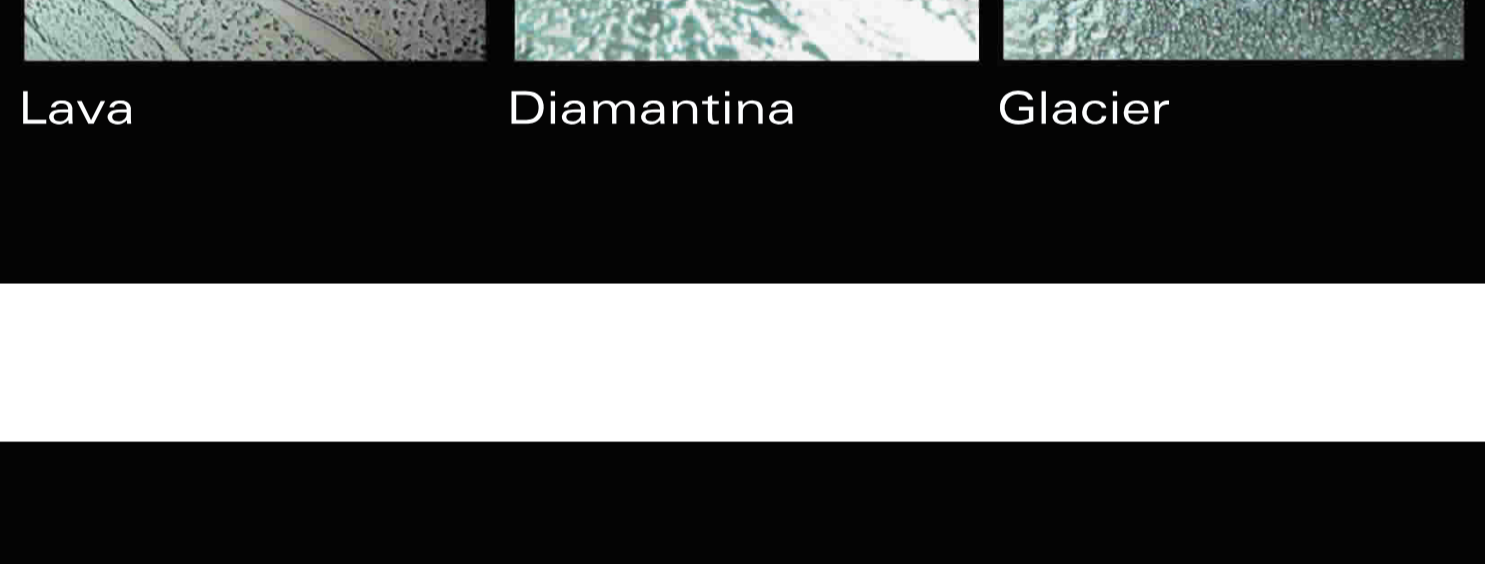

products

The applications for iceFX products is endless and is really upto your imagination. It's been used for wash basins, water features, signage boards and custom seating designs.

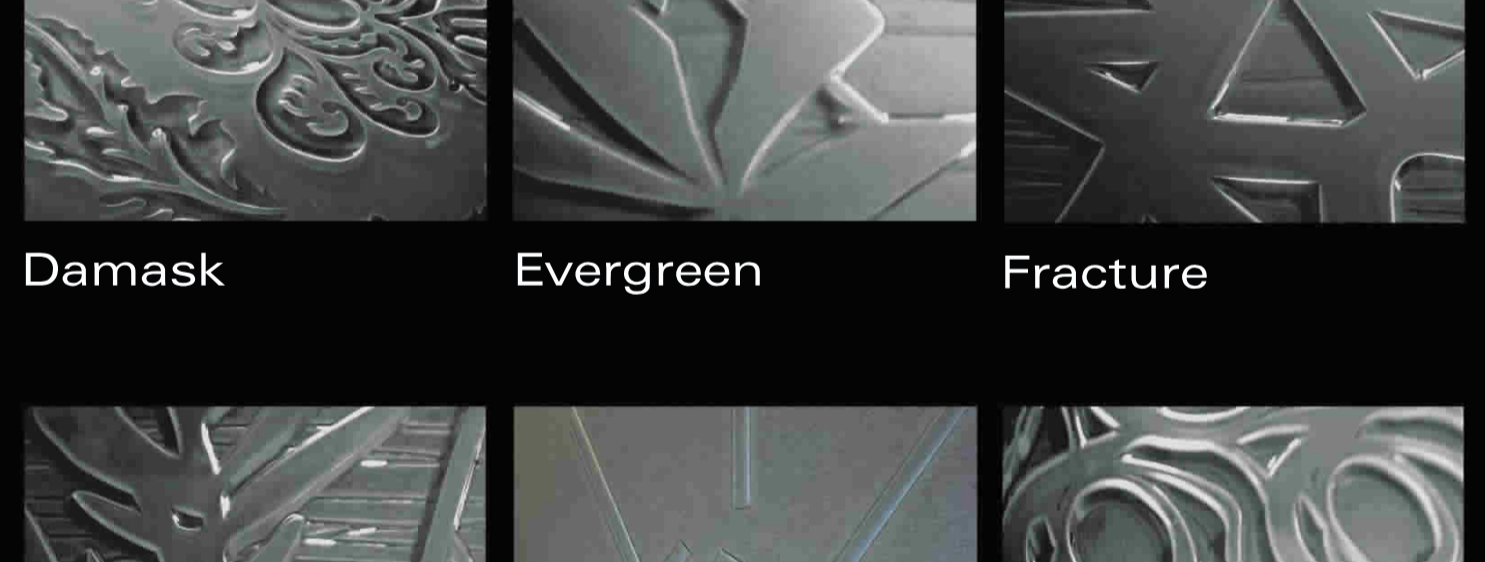

classic range

Through many years on the Australian market, IceFX by Rossini has proven durable, as well as providing attractive and effective material for screens, signs and decor features.
